

Weaver to lead HACC program

Public Opinion Online
CHAMBERSBURG -- Gettysburg resident Evelyn Weaver will oversee HACC's mechatronics program being delivered in Franklin County through a $250,000 technical college program grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

Weaver was named Franklin County coordinator by Jennifer Weaver, vice president and dean of the Gettysburg Campus of HACC.

Twenty-five students enrolled for classes that started Feb. 16 at the Franklin County Career and Technology Center in Chambersburg.

Mechatronics is a high-demand technical field combining mechanical systems and electronic controls.

Weaver, whose office is located at FCCTC, will oversee scheduling, enrollment management, delivery of student and academic support services for the program.

Her duties also include networking with business and industry, school districts and community-based organizations to form partnerships for delivering HACC's mechatronics program and other potential HACC course and program offerings.

Weaver formerly was executive vice president of operations for Eastern Motor Inns Inc. of Carlisle and director of economic development for the Cumberland County Economic Development. She has a bachelor's degree in economics from Shippensburg University.
